HIGHLY TOPICAL SITCOM FORMAT

Created by Andy Hamilton and Guy Jenkin (Drop the Dead Donkey and Outnumbered)

Written week by week during the British general election, the show was a huge success on Channel 4, lauded by viewers and critics alike. The show centres around the climax of an election campaign following members of each political party.

EXCLUSIVE SHOT JUST HOURS BEFORE TRANSMISSION

A unique scripted comedy shot on the campaign buses of the main political parties in the run up to a general election including comic dialogue about stories that have emerged only a few hours before transmission. The majority of each episode is filmed one week before broadcast, drawing on major themes and incidents of each political party's campaign, with highly topical material filmed on the day of transmission being added hours before actual broadcast.

RICH COLLECTION OF CHARACTERS

It follows press officers, consultants, social media monitors, political analysts, interns and bus drivers on each campaign bus, as they crisis-manage the latest dramas and developments which viewers have just seen on the TV or read about in their newspapers.
