

SARAH BEENY VS. CANCER

A woman with a shaved head, smiling, sitting on a wooden bench in a greenhouse. She is wearing a black shirt, blue jeans, and brown boots. She is holding a white mug with the word 'OLIVER' on it. The greenhouse is filled with various plants, including a large potted plant in a blue and white ceramic pot, and a red watering can. The background shows a view of trees and a green landscape through the glass walls of the greenhouse.

In this deeply personal documentary, Sarah Beeny explores the past, present and future of breast cancer treatment in the UK, while dealing with her own journey to recovery

SARAH BEENY VS. CANCER

In August 2022 mum, property expert and broadcaster Sarah Beeny was diagnosed with breast cancer, almost exactly 40 years after her mother died of the same disease when Sarah was just ten years old.

In this deeply personal authored documentary Sarah explores the past, present and future of breast cancer treatment in the UK, with filming starting on her very first day of treatment just three weeks after her initial diagnosis. Heartfelt video diary ensures the highs and lows of this challenging period of Sarah's life are captured when the cameras are not around.

But it's not only Sarah's story that is told. By capturing interviews with her husband Graham Swift and their four children, Billy (18), Charlie (16), Raffey (14) and Laurie (12), throughout the eight-month period, it offers a perspective of what the whole family go through when a family member is undergoing treatment for cancer.
