MICHAEL MOSLEY: SECRETS OF YOUR BIG SHOP

Massive ratings hit at 8pm, increasing the slot average by 33%.

Science presenter and journalist Dr Michael Mosley, whose work transformed the way we think about health, takes a bold and inquisitive leap into uncovering the truth behind the nation's wellbeing by examining what's in our shopping trolleys. With around 60% of non-genetic illness linked to diet, Michael was passionately committed to driving meaningful change.

He goes undercover in supermarkets across the country to reveal exactly what we're putting into our trolleys – and how those choices affect our health. For those who find themselves ambushed by Michael and his scanner, a health overhaul is in store, as he prescribes them a healthy diet – in a determined effort to get them feeling and looking better.

Along the way, Michael explores some of the internet's most talked-about health hacks – from the 10-day egg diet to the claim that carrots can give you a tan – while also reworking everyday meals to create healthier versions of our favourite foods.

JOE WICKS: LICENSED TO KILL

Joe begins by uncovering the scale of the health crisis, where ultra-processed foods are increasingly linked to obesity, chronic illness, and premature death.

Determined to cut through the confusion, he teams up with Chris to create a product that lays bare just how dangerous these everyday foods can be. Together, they design a protein bar called 'Killer'—a seemingly harmless snack packed with notorious additives linked to cancer, stroke, and early death. Disturbingly, every single ingredient is entirely legal.

But making the bar is just the beginning. To force the issue into the spotlight, Joe decides to sell 'Killer' to the public, sparking an audacious showdown with the press, the food industry, and governments themselves.

Will this provocative act finally trigger the change needed to protect consumers?

SECRETS OF YOUR SUPERMARKET FOOD

We buy 95% of all our food from just 10 supermarket chains. But how much do we really know about how our food is grown, made and sold?

In this investigative consumer series, Sian Williams and Stefan Gates look at how our food is grown and made, lifting the lid on the secrets supermarkets don't want us to know and manufacturers don't have to tell us about. Such as what chemicals are involved in food processing, how little meat there is in a budget sausage and "Fresh" fruit not being as freshly picked as we think.

With the help of a different tester family each week, the duo reveals the truth behind the labels and travel around the country visiting farms and labs and meeting experts and consumers to uncover the latest research about what we're feeding our families and whether it's as good for our health as it is for our wallets.

EASY WAYS TO LIVE WELL

Modern life is not good for us. Most of us we are fatter, less fit and more stressed than ever before. And all of us want to be healthier... But with temptation everywhere, it's incredibly hard. But all is not lost.

Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall is joined by Steph McGovern on a mission to help us all fight back, revealing the easy fixes to dramatically improve our diet, fitness, mental wellbeing, and even help us sleep better. In a fun, fast-paced series packed full of the latest science and useful advice, we see genuine transformations that show how small changes can lead to big improvements, with Hugh and Steph testing out some of the most surprising things we can do to make ourselves feel better and live longer. With scientific experts on hand to bust the myths, and guinea pigs such as families and groups of colleagues to try out new methods, this show is warm, and at times mischievous and provocative

WHAT NOT TO EAT

Leading health scientist Professor Tim Spector and practicing GP Dr Kandi Ejiyor team up to challenge the unhealthy love affair with ultra-processed foods (UPFs). You'll discover how some of the most common health concerns affecting families can be helped by making simple changes to our eating habits by consuming fewer UPFs.

Each episode spotlights a different family grappling with a host of modern health issues, ranging from obesity, fatigue, and acne to high blood pressure and stress, exploring how their diet might be at the root of the problem. Dr Kandi guides each family through a tailored health overhaul, using testing and food tracking to uncover just how much UPF is in their daily intake. With candid insights and practical support, she helps them embrace simple, nourishing swaps that could transform their wellbeing.

Meanwhile, Professor Tim Spector peels back the science behind UPFs – revealing what they really are, how they hijack our cravings, and what their long-term effects can be. Through vivid demonstrations and myth-busting explanations, he offers science-backed alternatives to processed staples, from strawberry milkshakes to sausage rolls and snack foods, empowering viewers with the knowledge to make healthier choices.

DO YOU WANT TO LIVE FOREVER

Can we really live younger for longer? Can we beat the diseases that take away our joy for life and ultimately kill us? Can we push the boundaries of human longevity much further than we have so far? Could we even live forever? And most importantly of all, if we could, do we want to?

In this ground-breaking four-part documentary series, TV journalist Tracy Grimshaw and medical expert Dr Nick Coatsworth put four pairs of everyday Australians under the microscope in an attempt to stop the clock and turn back time. Over 12 weeks they are each put through a series of medically-supervised trials and health interventions that provide clues to help us live longer.

Tracy and Nick also look at the extraordinary advances in medicine and science that are just a few years away from defeating the worst ravages of ageing. This is a deep dive into the science of longevity, exploring the four big questions: Why do we die? How can science help us wind back our biological clocks? Will we one day be able to cure previously incurable diseases? And what might "living forever" look like?

DO YOU HAVE ADHD?

Attention Deficient Hyperactivity Disorder is one of the most searched health related hashtags amassing over 20 billion views. It's a hugely complex topic with an enormous variety of symptoms. As the saying goes 'if you've met one person with ADHD, you've met ONE person with ADHD', which makes diagnosis a minefield!

But what are the experts looking for in a diagnosis and how do you know you need one? For those people on the waiting list, for those who suspect a diagnosis might be a good idea, Dr Karan Rajan, a surgeon and internet health myth buster and former GP, Dr Clare Bailey Mosely want to steer you through a myriad of information. They'll hear from world leading experts such as Professor Stephen Scott, a leading academic and clinician in ADHD, to discuss what behaviours to spot, they'll speak to the most authoritative voices including author Ellie Middleton and podcaster Alex Partridge, plus some world beating commentators, a group of the most perceptive children with the condition. From form filling to the final assessment, and you can play along too, by filling out the World Health Organisation self-screening form to see if you could benefit from an assessment.

GEORGE CLARKE'S AMAZING SPACES

Architect George Clarke (The Restoration Man) explores the extraordinary uses of small spaces. George travels around the UK and beyond looking at amazing micro builds and the inspired people undertaking them, discovering that size is no object in the world of micro design. He meets the people creating spaces in the unlikeliest of places: from disused toilets to horse boxes, state of the art airstreams and tuk tuks.

In each series, George takes on his own ambitious build. Each episode is clearly themed according to the challenge facing George and his own micro build. From planning laws to maximising space, every programme is packed with jeopardy, ingenuity and wonderfully eccentric characters. The small space revolution is well under way.

AMAZING SPACES DENMARK (FANTASIFULDE RUM)

In Fantasifulde Rum (Imaginative Spaces) we journey around Denmark's very own unique homes and amazing spaces. The common theme between each project is making the most of a few square meters.

Host, Jens Bordinggard visits projects including a Hobbit House, a converted fire engine or a couple making the most of their 41m2 apartment or even a hotel in central Copenhagen with only one room. Jens also has his own personal projects including converting an old 1970s military truck into both an office & accommodation. This series gives us a glimpse of the extraordinary imagination of the Danish.

GEORGE CLARKE'S BEAUTIFUL BUILDS

Architect George Clarke helps families up and down the UK with their home renovations. An excellent kitchen or garden will BOTH add up to 20% to the value of the home, but where should you prioritise the spend - kitchen or garden?

George, along with garden designer Luke Millard, design a dream scheme for both spaces- so our homeowners can see the potential, and the expense involved. Its then down to them to choose where to put the lion's share of the budget. Both areas will be revamped, but the one with a lower spend will have to significantly compromise. So will George or Luke have the bigger budget? The series is also packed with masterclasses on both kitchen finishes and garden landscaping on any budget.

GEORGE CLARKE'S BUILDING HOME

Wherever life takes you, whatever adventures you embark upon. There truly is no place like home.

In this series, George Clarke meets the people relocating back home, taking on ambitious projects with a personal connection. From those who've inherited the wrecks their grandparents were born in, to the brave souls selling up everything and buying a ruin to renovate with a link to childhood memories, and the dreamers ditching their rented 1-bed flats, and searching for a slice of the good life, closer to family. George meets people taking the biggest gamble of their lives.

GEORGE CLARKE'S ADVENTURES IN AMERICANA

George Clarke travels across the USA in search of the fascinating stories and people behind the buildings that make America so unique.

George travels to New Jersey, Connecticut, and the Catskills, visiting a poetry cabin in the woods, a disused zoo, and stays in a classic 1960s motel in the beach resort of Wildwood. On the West Coast, he visits a town built to look like a Western movie set. In Texas he discovers life on a ranch, and in Louisiana, uncovers the ugly truth behind plantation. In Florida, he makes a flying visit to a community with its own private runway, where everyone owns a plane! George also marvels at Miami's legendary art deco architecture, before heading to Key West to discover the secrets of laidback living at the very tip of the country

SARAH BEENY Vs CANCER

Following Sarah's diagnosis of breast cancer in 2022, the disease that killed her 39 year old mother when Sarah was just 10, this powerful and positive documentary lets cameras into this most personal and private area of her life.

The team, who built a close relationship with her filming Sarah Beeny's New Life in the Country, follow her over the course of her chemotherapy, as she faces and recovers from a mastectomy operation in January and then the subsequent radiotherapy. She'll share highs, lows and surprises, both positive and negative. There may be tears and frustrations, but she wants to learn everything she can to ensure there will also be laughter and fun for her family. Her hope in sharing this part of her life is that it becomes an inspiring and straight-talking piece, with no mention of 'battles' or 'journeys' with cancer.

SARAH BEENY'S NEW COUNTRY LIVES

Sarah Beeny follows families and couples through the highs, lows and laughs as they say goodbye to the city and embark on new lives in the beautiful British countryside.

In this compelling series, we see couples and families following in Sarah and her family's footsteps, with Sarah herself on hand to offer insight and encouragement. But reinventing your entire life in the country doesn't come without a few surprises. Whether it's escaped animals, teens going feral on country air (or Scrumpy cider), or pressure to make their new life pay its way, the families have a lot to overcome. We focus on their crucial early months of living in the countryside, following the key moments in projects or builds.

This is perfect escapism for anyone who dreams of swapping town life for rural paradise, and a vicarious pleasure for those who don't.

SARAH BEENY'S NEW LIFE IN THE COUNTRY

Sarah Beeny and her family are swapping the urban jungle for a new life in the country.

Sarah, her husband Graham, and their four sons quit their lives in London to start anew in what they hope will be a rural idyll. They've bought a semi-derelict former dairy farm in Somerset, where they'll build the house of their dreams; a modern, carbon-neutral, mini stately home.

Sarah is looking to create an idyllic yet purposeful country life for the family, introducing bees and collecting hens, and road testing rural businesses, from cheese-making to cider making and chilli growing. Until the build is complete, the family will live in an unattractive 70's farmhouse, surrounded by dilapidated barns and Sarah has misgivings. Graham is far more upbeat about the farm and the vast amount of land they have to play with. He's looking forward to creating a stunning classically designed home for the family.

This escapist and hugely feel-good series follows the challenges the family go through as they re-invent their lives and move lock, stock and barrel from city to country.

FILTY GARDEN SOS

Filthy Garden SOS meets desperate owners whose out of control gardens are more dumpsite or jungle than sanctuary. For those willing to work hard to fix their problem, help is at hand.

Award-winning garden designer Diarmuid Gavin, fellow designer and community garden champion Danny Clarke and Penny Lamb, who has the power tools to transform any landscape, have just days to teach the owners how to create a gorgeous garden that's easy to look after. After doing their share of clearing waste, building and planting, it's time for the owners to reveal to their families their new garden.

PRUE'S GREAT GARDEN PLOT

Prue Leith has always had an emotional connection with her beloved garden. She's lovingly tended it over 50 years and seen the garden change and evolve as her family have grown from children to adulthood and it contains many precious memories. Now, Prue and husband John are moving to a newly converted medieval barn they've designed together and have taken on the challenge of creating a brand new garden together. But, there's one BIG problem for passionate gardener Prue, their glorious new home is surrounded by rubbish, rubble, rusting buildings and overgrown vegetation.

With exclusive access to their home and garden, we join Prue over the first year in their new home as she seeks inspiration from the UK's best gardens and gardeners, then designs, digs and plants the garden of their dreams. With spades and seeds at the ready for more than a few trowel and errors.

GRADE 1 BRITAIN WITH KEVIN MCCLLOUD

Britain has more than half a million listed buildings, but only a tiny fraction, just 2.5% are classified as Grade 1. These are the nation's most important structures: buildings of exceptional architectural, cultural and historical significance.

In Kevin McCloud's Grade 1 Britain, Kevin embarks on a visually stunning journey through these extraordinary places, from world-famous landmarks to surprising hidden gems tucked away in plain sight. Across the series, Kevin visits an eclectic mix of buildings spanning centuries of design – from cathedrals, castles and abbeys to modernist masterpieces, futuristic petrol stations and unlikely icons such as art-deco bingo halls and humble bike sheds.

Along the way, Kevin meets the historians, architects, curators and conservators who reveal the stories behind the stone, steel and glass. More than bricks and mortar, these buildings tell the story of Britain itself: the innovators, communities and values that shaped the nation – and the ongoing effort to preserve its architectural soul for generations to come.

THE GREAT BRITISH DIG: HISTORY IN YOUR BACK GARDEN

Our towns and cities are a treasure trove of hidden history, with 6,000 years of human habitation encased in the earth beneath our feet. We're challenging communities to get their hands dirty and uncover the history that is, literally, in their back gardens. Presented by Hugh Dennis (Outnumbered, Mock the Week), a team of archaeologists, historians and experts spend a week in Maidstone, Kent, where it's thought the remains of a Roman settlement may lie below the terraced houses of Florence Road. Hugh goes door-to-door, recruiting locals to let the team dig up their gardens in the search of remains. And residents of all ages roll up their sleeves to get to work. Soon the discovery of small fragments of Roman pots builds hopes of uncovering something bigger.

The experts bring to life what a Roman complex on the site may have looked like in the second century. But will they discover enough to confirm what really lay beneath this everyday residential street centuries ago?

BRITISH GARDENS IN TIME

This series, narrated by Paul Copley (Downton Abbey), takes a close look at four iconic gardens created during four very different eras, each a fascinating window into a different century and the people who created it.

Beginning with Christopher Lloyd's garden at Great Dixter, we immerse ourselves in the world of Arts and Crafts. Then we explore the National Trust Gardens, and reveal the politics and intrigue behind the Georgian landscape garden at Stowe, travel around the world at Biddulph Grange, the best surviving Victorian garden in the country, and explore the doomed Edwardian romance of Nymans, a quintessentially English garden created by a family of German Jewish immigrants. These four gardens are treasure troves of social history, with powerful stories of escape, social ambition, heartbreak, downfall and disaster, written into their landscapes.

BANJO & RO'S GRAND ISLAND HOTEL

Two Australians. One remote Scottish island. A crumbling mansion with no running water, no electricity – and no margin for error.

Interior designer Banjo Beale and his husband Ro leave their life on the Isle of Mull and venture even further into the Hebrides to Ulva, an island with just sixteen residents and one extraordinary challenge: Ulva House. Once a grand mansion, it now teeters between faded splendour and total ruin. Their audacious plan is to transform it into a one of a kind boutique hotel, battling time, weather, isolation, and a rapidly shrinking budget.

Each episode follows Banjo and Ro as they tackle a new space – from whisky libraries and mural-lined lobbies to restaurants, guest rooms, and a show-stopping kitchen, while navigating the brutal realities of island life. With materials arriving by ferry, storms tearing through unfinished roofs, finances stretched to breaking point, and their relationship under strain, every decision carries real risk.

This is more than a renovation series. It's an intimate, high-stakes story of love, resilience, creativity, and what it truly takes to build a dream at the edge of the world.

DREAM KITCHENS AND BATHROOMS

Kitchens and Bathrooms are the most important rooms in the house. They get the most use, they add the most value to your property, and they are the most difficult to get right. There are so many different styles to choose from, they are complicated to design, and if you make a dog's dinner, they're very expensive to fix. In this entertaining series, presenter Mark Millar (DIY SOS) follows ordinary homeowners trying to turn their dreams for a new kitchen or bathroom into reality, and helps them battle with tight budgets and decoration dilemmas. As well as the makeover stories the viewer gets to see inspiring and beautiful finished kitchens and bathrooms from around the country, and giving practical ideas and information for different budgets.

BANGERS: MAD ABOUT CARS

London born rapper Tinie Tempah judges Britain's best bangers and beauties from the golden age of the automotive industry. Joining Tinie's search for the ultimate banger is Naomi Schiff, ex-professional race driver, Hollywood stunt artist, Sky Sports F1 presenter & motor aficionado. From a boxy BMW to a pimped out Range Rover, Tinie and Naomi get behind the wheel to see which car really is the most bangin' banger. They also explore the fascinating social history behind each car - how big car rivalries evolved and played out in popular culture, and how they influenced Britain today. Through music, fashion and the odd prop they immerse themselves in the time and place of each car. Across four themed episodes they'll explore: the hatchback, convertible, executive car and 4x4, and Tinie selects the most iconic cars in each class. They meet their eccentric owners, obsessive fan clubs, and take part in some wild race days devoted to these vehicles.

FULL METAL JUNKIES

From the makers of George Clarke's Amazing Spaces, this series follows the everyday goings on at Shred and Butta, an upcycling car yard with a difference. Whether it's creating a caravan suspended in the sky, or simply taking your best friend's car (while he's out), cutting the roof off and installing a hot tub, this series is fun, entertaining, and full of clever ideas to turn vehicles into something entirely different to their original purpose! But it's not all fun and games. For the team there is actual work to be done to make people's dreams come true: from converting an American school bus into a luxury hotel, a transit van into a mobile barbershop and creating a mobile wakeboarding camper van that defies the laws of physics. Follow Jim and his team of ace angle grinders and craftsmen in a series that's set to become one addiction you won't want to kick.

JOHNNY VEGAS' LITTLE SHOP OF ANTIQUES

Johnny Vegas sets out to finally fulfill his long-held dream: opening his own antiques and collectibles shop, Vintage Vegas.

With the help of his loyal and ever-patient assistant Bev, Johnny attempts to transform decades of compulsive collecting into a viable business—while learning the ropes of dealing, valuing, and (painfully) parting with some of his most treasured items.

As the series unfolds, Johnny and Bev tackle the challenges of shop ownership head-on. From struggling to stock the store in time for opening day, to navigating nerve-wracking auctions, toy fairs, and eccentric emporiums, each episode brings a mix of heartfelt dilemmas and comedic misadventures. Along the way, Johnny's taste for the bizarre and nostalgic—whether it's risqué paintings, toy pandas with a twist, or even a wasps' nest—keeps both Bev and viewers on their toes.

Every episode is a test: of Johnny's business instincts, Bev's patience, and their shared ability to turn a cluttered passion into a charming shop with genuine character. But as profits waver and storage fills, one big question remains—can Johnny really bring himself to let go?

RICH HOUSE POOR HOUSE CHANGED MY LIFE

As the gap between rich and poor continues to widen, we revisit families from opposite ends of the wealth divide who swapped places for a week in the original Rich House Poor House format. 12 months later we return to the Rich House Poor House families to discover whether their lives were changed forever. The format uses brand new interviews with the contributors, as well as looking back over clips from the original programme.

RICH HOLIDAY POOR HOLIDAY

How we holiday highlights the wealth divide like nothing else, so what happens when people with vastly different incomes swap holidays for a week. This entertaining and funny new series reveals the home truths about our class system as two families exchange holidays, activities and budgets, to find out if money really does buy happiness on holiday. From windy campsites and the basic bedrooms of Benidorm to luxury foreign villas and private yachts on tropical islands, who will have the time of their lives?

Do the top 10% ever want to share their loungers with the bottom 10%, and when we pack our bags and head for the sun do we just want to stick to our side of the wealth divide?

RICH HOUSE POOR HOUSE MILLIONAIRE SPECIAL

What happens when old and new money collide, swapping homes and lives for a week? Does Britain have a class divide that no amount of money can cross? In this show we find out with surprising results. Kate Stewart is all new money bling. She came from nothing and is now one of Liverpool's richest women, running the Sandon bar and hotel next to Anfield football ground. She easily spends £20,000 a week on expensive jewellery, designer labels and Botox treatments.

Iona Pennington hails from a world of old money. She inherited 84 room Muncaster Castle in Cumbria together with 1700 acres, 40 tenanted properties, a hotel and two farms. With a fascinating final meeting between them as they examine Britain's class divide, this entertaining social experiment is educational and profound as Kate and Iona begin to understand and respect each other, but will some differences always remain?

RICH HOUSE POOR HOUSE USA SPECIALS

In this U.S. spin-off of the hit British series, one British and American family from opposite ends of the wealth divide swap homes, budgets, and lifestyles for one life-changing week. From city penthouses and gated estates to rural towns and working-class neighborhoods, each family steps into a world that couldn't be further from their own.

As they navigate unfamiliar environments, financial pressures, and cultural differences, both families confront their assumptions about opportunity, success, and the American Dream. At the end of the week, they come together to share what they've learned – and the wealthier family is given the chance to make a meaningful difference in the other's life.

Rich House Poor House USA Specials is a powerful, emotional exploration of money, identity, and what truly brings happiness in modern America.

WELCOME TO RIO

Officially the happiest city in the world, Rio is best known as a tropical city of carnival queens and beautiful beaches. But that's just its marketing line. The real story is in the illegally occupied favelas; best known as places besieged by drugs and violence, without power, electricity, sewage or water, they exist way off the social and economic grid. But there is another side to this enormous population. Over 1.5 million people are building and fuelling one of the fastest growing economies on earth. In time for the World Cup in 2014 and the Olympics in 2016, Welcome to Rio explores the city through the eyes of the people that are on the frontline of its development. Humorous, determined and inspiring, this is a unique window on the people who are the heart and soul of the city.

WELCOME TO INDIA

Following on from the BAFTA winning Welcome to Lagos. Incredibly our planet somehow supports seven billion people, but one in six of us live and thrive in just one country: India. They may have a massive population but Indians are good at making the most of every opportunity – they're ingenious entrepreneurs, ambitious, resilient and the wildest of operators! In this observational documentary series, ordinary Indians show us how they can make so much of so little. They earn their living in extraordinary ways, making the most of every resource available; from the gold panner working in the Calcutta drains to the feisty lady building a waste bottle sorting empire on a railway embankment. These are incredible and visually arresting stories told by the characters themselves with warmth and humanity.

BRADFORD: CITY OF DREAMS

Depressed, decaying and culturally divided are words used in conjunction with Bradford. With a huge influx of immigrants from Pakistan and two sets of racially motivated riots, its reputation appears sealed forever. However, it also has the youngest and fastest growing population in the UK.

Cue super-cars, sleek restaurants, funky Shisha lounges and young Asian multi-millionaires. While nobody's been looking, a revolution has been going on. This warm affectionate series offers a unique perspective on this fascinating city, following the life and work of some of its biggest characters. It's the optimistic antidote to the tiresome "grim North" stereotype, presenting a vibrant community facing up to the future.

NOT WELCOME: THE BATTLE TO STOP THE BOATS

More people than ever before, are willing to risk it all to get to the UK. But as the boats keep coming, and the death toll keeps rising, the question of what to do with them has brought long-simmering tensions to the boil.

For 2 years, Channel 4 has been filming with people who are determined to come to the UK, and those who are equally determined to keep them out. 18-year-old Mustafa from Idlib in Syria has one goal, to get to the UK – whatever it takes. On the other side of the debate, 24-year-old Chloe from Llanelli in South Wales is worried about people like Mustafa coming to live in her town.

In this film we hear from both sides of the debate. This is the story of the Small Boats, told by those living through it.

THE ROMANIANS ARE COMING

This series follows a group of Romanians over twelve months as they try to make a new life for themselves in Britain. We follow the stories from the inside, through the eyes of the migrants, following a selection of characters in Romania and then in the UK, getting to know them and why they want to come to Britain.

Capturing their initially bemused impressions as they arrive in the UK to start their new lives, we discover what they think of the locals, the benefit system, the police, the health service and whether they take to British customs such as binge drinking and lap dancing. Where the Brits see jobs or situations no-one wants, will the Romanians see opportunity? Where we see deprivation, will they see hope? And as the year draws to a close, are they here to stay?

EXODUS: OUR JOURNEY TO EUROPE

In 2015, 75 cameras were given to people attempting to migrate to Europe, to film where regular film crews can't: on inflatable dinghies crossing from Turkey to Greece, in lorries entering the Channel Tunnel, on open trucks driven by people smugglers across the Sahara. The result is a terrifyingly intimate, yet epic portrait of the biggest story of the decade.

These are the personal stories of individuals who collectively form an unprecedented phenomenon: one million migrants arrived in Europe in 2015, from across the Middle East and Africa, some escaping war or persecution, others searching for an escape from poverty. All are heading for what they hope will be a better, safer, life in Europe.

HUGH'S FAT FIGHT

After smoking, obesity is the next biggest cause of premature death in the UK. Two-thirds of the population are overweight owing to poor diet and lack of exercise. Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall is on a mission to try and do something about it. He pushes some of the biggest food companies and restaurant chains to be more transparent about what they are selling and asks the Government what they're doing to tackle this health crisis. Hugh also sees if it's possible to change the eating habits of a whole city by challenging the people of Newcastle to lose 100,000 lbs (45,359 kilos) in a year. A fourth episode, filmed 6 months after TX, reviews Hugh's progress.

HUGH'S FISH FIGHT: SAVE OUR SEAS

Hugh's Fish Fight: Save Our Seas has all the ambition, passion and campaigning fervour of the original series which looked at what was really going on at the industrial end of our fisheries... only this time the fight is global. Hugh launches an audacious new campaign to protect more of the world's oceans from destructive fishing methods, in an incredible journey that takes him on his most daring and dangerous adventure yet. He travels to the ends of the earth to reveal how our culinary demands are threatening some of the most remarkable marine habitats, and explores the shocking truth about the future of fish. We need radical change in our oceans, to save our seas and feed a growing population.

SAVING AFRICA'S ELEPHANTS: HUGH AND THE IVORY WAR

Wildlife poaching, worth an estimated £20 billion per year, is pushing two of the world's most loved species, elephant and rhino, to the brink of extinction. Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall travels the world to try and understand what is going on, and what can be done to counter the crisis before it's too late. From the killing in Africa, through to the illicit trafficking and on to the illegal wildlife markets of Asia, Hugh joins frontline rangers, NGOs and law enforcement agencies in his quest to find out more. He follows the trail from the rhino and elephant corpses of Africa to the backstreets in Vietnam and Hong Kong. He investigates both Europe and the UK's own ivory trade to expose a dark secret. And he joins another fervent ambassador for an end to the ivory trade, HRH Prince William, in a global publicity stunt to get one clear message out there – we must end the trade in ivory and rhino horn for good.

THE GREAT CLIMATE FIGHT

A world without climate change is possible, and the solutions could benefit us all. Kevin McCloud, Mary Portas and Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall join forces to fight the most important campaign of their lives. Kevin, Hugh, and Mary take the fight to the heart of government, demanding change that could unlock a greener economy, give us cheaper energy, and lower our utility bills. Kevin focuses on the appalling state of British houses that are wasting energy unnecessarily when the government could so easily demand better. Mary takes on the government over their uniquely generous treatment of the oil and gas sector. And Hugh goes on a mission to get the senseless ban on onshore wind lifted. Between them, these three veteran campaigners will use every trick in the book to hold government and big business to account.

HUGH'S WAR ON WASTE

In an attempt to get to grips with how much waste we produce, TV presenter and environmental campaigner Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall tackles the subject of rubbish head on. He challenges supermarkets to reduce the amount of food they throw away, uncovers some shocking truths about the wasteful fashion industry and encourages all of us to take more care about what we put in our bins, giving top suggestions for viewers wanting to live a greener life. What happens to your recycling after it leaves your house? Why do all the fruit and veg in the supermarket look so similar? Why do we now have eight fashion seasons instead of four? Including some high profile stunts challenging the food and fashion industry, the first two programmes transmit together. A third programme, six months later, looks at how much has changed in the real world.

WAR ON PLASTIC

Every minute of every day, the equivalent of a garbage truck full of plastic is emptied into the world's oceans. Hugh Fearnley-Whittingstall (River Cottage) and Anita Rani (Countryfile) explore where this problem is coming from and what we can all do to try and solve it. They visit a street in Bristol to uncover the overwhelming amount of single-use plastics in our homes, and challenge residents to reduce the amount of single-use plastic they use. Anita confronts organisations and visits wet wipe companies to ask why they aren't telling us about the plastic they contain. Hugh puts micro-plastics under the microscope and discovers that plastic is raining down on us from the air, in our domestic spaces, and may well be entering our lungs. In the final follow up episode, Hugh and Anita escalate their war on plastic as they investigate teabags and sandwich packets and challenge a British family to go plastic free on a budget. This episode was filmed during Coronavirus and the episode also looks at how the take-up of single-use plastic around the world increased dramatically. They investigate whether it is any safer to buy fruit and veg wrapped in plastic and discover the problem with single-use disposable plastic masks.

MARY'S SILVER SERVICE

Retail guru Mary Portas sets up a pop-up employment agency, for overlooked and under-represented pensioners. From catering to gardening, DIY to hairdressing, Mary will be searching far and wide to recruit an army of old people who may have been cast aside by society, but still have much to offer. The majority of over 65s have been forced to retire, but it doesn't mean they don't still have skills and experience.

As the agency finds new job opportunities, does this army of pensioners still have what it takes to make it in the modern world whilst delivering the lost service, skills and business etiquette of yesteryear?

HE'S HAVING A BABY

Any fool can make a baby, but it takes a real man to raise one. This reality series follows eight young fathers (and their partners) on the brink of parenthood. The one hour weekly episodes are studio based, asking the fathers-to-be about what has happened to them in the past week and how they got on with the week's "Dad Assignment". As the series progresses and babies are born we meet the new babies and proud new parents. In between the weekly studio shows, runs a stripped daily docu-soap that gives the audience a closer insight into the lives of the fathers-to-be. We find out how their childhood prepared them for fatherhood, we follow them to their hospital appointments, and even to the delivery room!

This is a journey of discovery that will transform boys into men.

THE BIG BREAD EXPERIMENT

This unique social experiment has one extraordinary ambition: to re-unite a community through bread. The journey begins in a local church hall of a Yorkshire town, where a small group of women, led by curate Cath Vickers, has set up a bread group, believing that it will help bring community spirit back to the town. To help the baking group make the leap from village hall amateurs to professional bakers, they are mentored by professional artisan bakers, Patrick Ryan and Duncan Glendinning. We follow the women through their journey to launch the local community bakery and discover that bread does indeed have the power to shape and connect people.

THE BIG C & ME

Follow the lives of nine people across the UK living with cancer. Filmed over a year, this series documents everything the disease has to throw at them - from the life-changing moment of diagnosis, through treatment and whatever lies beyond. Across three episodes we meet those whose lives are reshaped by a cancer diagnosis: some, like seventeen year old Phoebe, coming to terms with this for the first time and weighing up the risks of trying bold, innovative treatments abroad; others, like belly dancer Yvette, facing the news that her breast cancer of twenty years has spread. Combining observational filmmaking and fixed-rig cameras in hospitals, The Big C & Me enters the world of the cancer patient in 2016, demystifying a disease that affects us all.

PLAY TIME

Six neurodivergent comedians must create and perform an original stage play...based entirely on the ideas of a neurodiverse group of 6 to 8 year old school children.

Arriving at a local primary school in time for the school bell, our six comedians are challenged to put on a play for the pupils, their parents and the teachers. Easy, right?

Not quite... All of the ideas for the play; settings, stories, characters, catchphrases, etc. will all come from the 'writers'; a neurodiverse group of young children with some impressive imaginations... Whatever ideas the children come up with, the comedians must turn into a play that they then perform that very same day at the school for all of the children and their family and friends. When the school bell goes, it's show time!

Irreverent, lighthearted, joyous, witty, human and heartwarming; Play Time celebrates creativity, community and connection. As well as the endless imaginations of children across the full neurodiversity spectrum, showing that we should be proud of and celebrate our differences.

DRAG SOS

An outrageous and emotional series following inspiring drag queens Cheddar Gorgeous and Anna Phylactic along with their authentic drag family as they embark on their first ever glamorous national road trip. Their aim? To unleash Britain's inner drag - and help ordinary Brits go on a voyage of self-discovery as they transform into a bigger, better, drag-enhanced version of themselves. Funny, glamorous and razor sharp drag queens Cheddar Gorgeous, Anna Phylactic and The Family live in Manchester where they host the monthly "Cha Cha Boudoir", and teach unconfident and uncertain guests how to dress, make up and unleash their inner diva, a journey they've made themselves. Drag is about finding your most glamorous route to self-confidence and The Family tours Britain in their bus to work with people with their own stories to tell. Can they convince the unconstructed man, the downtrodden woman, and the anxious teenager to come together and unleash a new side of themselves? Each show sees them work within a community, leading to a huge lip sync performance, in front of family, friends and the locals from the town who witness a transformation they could never have imagined.

INSIDE MISSGUIDED

Nitin Passi, CEO and Founder of Britain's fastest growing fashion brand, has set his sights on becoming the first British Asian Billionaire. To get there, he and his predominantly all-female workforce must take risks. But after eight years of enormous success, Missguided crashed. They lost £26 million in 2018 and Nitin is now spending more than ever before to bring his business back to glory.

This is an exploration of one of the UK's fastest growing and most profitable industries: fast fashion. An industry that's dominated by young entrepreneurial British Asians. Whilst there's an extraordinary story to be told in the success and future plans of Missguided, there's a cost beyond the price tag. The company must address the way it operates globally, and how to move forward in an ever-changing, ever-ethical clothing industry.

JAMES MAY'S TOY STORIES

James May (Top Gear) takes on extraordinary feats of engineering and ludicrously ambitious adventures using our best loved toys. James and his volunteers build the world's first two-storey life-size house of lego; sand, paint and glue together a life-size spitfire made entirely of Airfix; they build a bridge out of Meccano strong enough to withhold James, and span a Liverpool canal; they build a world record beating Scalextric track on what was the world's first racetrack; they lay 16km of Hornby rail track and race five toy trains; and they cultivate the first Plasticine garden and enter it at London's Chelsea Flower Show.

And in four more hour long specials, James runs a Hornby model railway between two towns, attempts to fly the first toy glider across the English Channel, builds the world's first motorbike out of Meccano and sees if Action Man can travel faster than the speed of sound.

JAMES MAY: THE REASSEMBLER

James reassembles a host of objects which have been carefully taken apart to all their hundreds of individual parts. Each episode focuses on one object and carefully puts it back together, tightening every bolt and rebuilding the object to its complete form, then testing its competency. We also get a history of the component parts. As James rebuilds an engine, he explains the cylinders and what they do. He highlights interesting parts of the reassembly, pin pointing key components and why they're needed.

JAMES MAY AND THE DULL MEN

James May was recently introduced to the online phenomenon of 'Dull Men's' forums, a place where men (and some women) ask questions most of us never thought to ask: "Can you cook dinner in your washing machine whilst cleaning your whites? "Is it possible to solve Britain's pothole problem once and for all?"

These so-called 'boring blokes' tinker away in their sheds, dreaming up solutions to problems like these. But James also has a shed, and he too spends a lot of time thinking about how small feats of engineering and ingenuity could solve our everyday irks...Now, from his home, shed and the pub he owns in Wiltshire, James embarks on a glorious 'summer of dull'.

Immersing himself in the threads on these forums, he'll seek to create his own 'genius' solutions and prove that these 'mundane men' are in fact, anything but dull.

JAMES MAY SHED LOADS OF IDEAS

James May returns with a brand-new series, taking on the everyday frustrations that unite a nation in grumbles. From his Wiltshire home, his pub, and most importantly his shed, James sets out to dream up imaginative fixes for the problems blighting Britain and stirring up public annoyance.

Armed with his trademark wit and curiosity – and joined once again by his engineer sidekick Sim and series favourite Tony "The Tool" – James dives into a fresh set of challenges. Whether it's tackling practical irritations or exploring the country's bigger gripes, this inventive trio use humour, creativity, and a shed-load of tools to prove that no problem is too small (or too ridiculous) to try and solve.

Witty, inventive and packed with surprising solutions, this new series is a celebration of British ingenuity and the joy of tinkering.

JAMES MAY'S GREAT EXPLORERS

James May tells the stories of three of the world's most famous and infamous explorers: Columbus, Raleigh and Cook. Told not just through their expeditions, but through stories of scientific endeavour, political machinations, engineering innovation and culinary invention that allowed their ships to set sail in the first place, and the impact of these famous journeys.

James May will also reassesses the reputations of these three historic figures. James gives us a real sense of what the world looked like before these explorers set off on voyages of discovery, and shows us all the things that didn't exist in Europe before the ships left. He also reveals all the new foods, flora, animals, as well as the unintended consequences that came back from across the waters as these explorers returned home. James also reveals in his inimitable way the men behind these legends of history – for him even using the word 'great' to describe them might be a bit of a stretch.

JAMES MAY'S HUMAN MACHINE

James May has always loved machines. Now, he turns that curiosity inward to explore the most remarkable machine of all: the human body.

James treats flesh, bone and brain like the ultimate feat of engineering, uncovering how we move, think, fuel ourselves and survive. Getting hands-on with real anatomy and cutting-edge science, he explores everything from muscles and neurons to digestion and immunity, often through bold, explosive and occasionally ill-advised experiments.

With trademark wit and curiosity, James makes complex biology brilliantly accessible, revealing the ingenious and often ridiculous solutions nature has engineered to keep us alive. Smart, surprising and frequently jaw-dropping, this is a celebration of the extraordinary machinery we all live inside, every day.

EDEN: PARADISE LOST

The international version of Eden: Paradise Lost is a specially edited version of the huge social experiment filmed over the course of a year in which 23 ordinary men and women left everyday life behind to "start again". However, with cameras filming their every move, the dream turned into a nightmare as over half the community left and quarrels over food and shelter produced something more like Hell than Eden.

TAKE A HIKE

Based on the original Am Dro! series, Take A Hike sees five walkers go head-to-head to discover the best scenery the UK has to offer. If there's one thing people love in Britain, it's a great walk. Whether it's a trip to the seaside to soak up the rays, a challenging hike up a rugged mountain, or a picturesque river-side stroll. It could be for the jaw-dropping views or the great company, or just the joy of being outdoors. Each week, 5 walkers will take it in turns to lead the walk, with the other 4 rating the quality of the route, picnic, views and entertainment provided by the leader. Come rain or shine, uphill or down dale, will they give 10/10 or a measly 1? At the end of each week, the winner will walk off with a voucher for outdoor gear, and the coveted 'Golden Walking Stick'. So let the challenge commence!

THREE WIVES ONE HUSBAND

With unprecedented access to a unique community of 15 Mormon families living in the Utah desert, this series offers an intimate and revealing insight into the everyday lives of modern polygamists. From the dos and don'ts of courtship and appropriate ways to behave in front of your sister wife, to the management of sleeping arrangements, Three Wives One Husband looks at how the families navigate the practical and emotional challenges of plural marriage. It also examines the values and beliefs that lead to embracing this unconventional way of life, particularly in the face of stigma from wider American society. At a time when the entire concept of a traditional nuclear family is being redefined, this series asks if there's anything we can learn from plural marriage and aims to encourage a reflection on attitudes towards love, relationships, family and faith

LIVING WITH THE AMISH

Six British teenagers leave their mobile phones, Facebook accounts and partying behind, as they head to Ohio and Pennsylvania to see if they can cope with six weeks of hard work and simple living amongst six families in the Amish community. They swap their iPhones for hymn books and their modern clothing for bonnets, braces and conservative Amish hats. The experience is a radical departure from the way teens live their lives in contemporary Britain, and requires a readjustment to a world of gas lamps, horses and carts, manual labour and communal hymn-singing. Will the experience help them find God or, just as importantly, discover who they really are as individuals?

AMISH: WORLD'S SQUAREST TEENAGERS

With rare access to the notoriously private Amish community, this series follows a group of five young Amish leaving their closed communities in mid-west USA for the very first time, to travel to Britain on an extraordinary cultural exchange. During their stay in Britain, the youngsters live with groups ranging from London street dancers to a castle-dwelling family in Scotland. After they get their first glimpse of the ocean, taste alcohol, dance to rock music and eat fast food, will they hold onto their own God-fearing values and simple lives? And how will they feel when a month later they return home?

COULD YOU SURVIVE ON THE BREADLINE?

Three prominent Australians go on separate immersive journeys into three distinct Australian localities and communities, to gain insights into the world of poverty and disadvantage and to see whether they themselves could survive on welfare and low incomes. Some of the contributors have pre-existing views of those who live on welfare; others may be in positions to influence welfare policy.

They're forced to hand over credit cards and forgo all access to their current lives. Travelling separately to three different parts of New South Wales over nine days, they navigate life on various forms of welfare and discover first-hand what people are forced to live without, such as proper heating, secure accommodation, adequate health care and a decent diet. They ask some tough questions, and test some commonly held beliefs. They also have their own views challenged – but how does the experience change them?

BROKE

A third of British people in work have less than £100 in savings. What is life like for those struggling to make ends meet, despite having a job? This is the real story behind working Britain today. Shot all over the UK, we follow nine families for a year as their financial futures hang in the balance. What does "just about managing" really mean for millions of us from all walks of life and from all over Britain?

From a homeless father and son on the South Coast, to an undertaker specialising in cut price funerals in Scotland, and a family working in the Steel works in Wales, we tell the human stories of the domestic pressure that working all hours and having nothing to show for it brings. But being broke is not the same as being broken. Despite the hardship, grit, resilience, humour, and entrepreneurial spirit shines through... proving that no matter how tough things are, people always try to find a way to keep going and pull on through to a better future.

Indiana Women's Prison and the Rockville Correctional Facility in the State of Indiana hold over 1800 offenders. Some are serving long sentences for very violent crimes, others will never be released.

Inmates include Sarah Pender, once labelled America's Most Wanted woman. While serving 110 years for double murder she broke out of the Rockville Correctional Facility. She was captured after 4 months on the run and has now spent more time in solitary confinement than any other female offender in the State. Trevor meets with the woman one officer described as 'the best manipulator I've seen in 20 years'.

KILLER WOMEN WITH PIERS MORGAN

CNN and Got Talent presenter and journalist, Piers Morgan, meets some of America's most notorious female murderers. He ventures behind bars to come face-to-face with women who have carried out the most unspeakable crimes, in a quest to discover what drives a woman to kill. Each story hinges on a gripping encounter with women who now face decades behind bars; each chilling interview takes place inside the maximum security prisons these killers now call home. Alongside these fascinating encounters, Piers also meets people whose lives were touched or altered by the events and who can shed light on the truth behind the shocking headlines. Through his search for the truth, Piers gets to highlight the grey areas in each story, be it the safety of a conviction or the extent to which each woman tries to hide their culpability by shifting blame on to others involved.

SERIAL KILLER WITH PIERS MORGAN

America is the land of the serial killer: the country has 20 times more serial murderers than anywhere else in the world, with upward of 2,000 identified cases. Chillingly, unlike most individuals who commit murder, serial killers are driven by the impulsive pleasure they take in the kill. But what does it feel like to come face-to-face with a serial killer? In this four part series, Piers Morgan ventures behind the bars of maximum security prisons across America and sits down with mass killers – men who have carried out some of the most unspeakable crimes imaginable – in a quest to discover what drives them to kill... and kill again. The serial killers featured are: Mark Riebe, Lorenzo Gilyard, Alex Henriquez, Bernard Giles.

PSYCHOPATH WITH PIERS MORGAN

In this ground-breaking and revelatory documentary, Piers Morgan meets Paris Bennett: a criminal more intelligent, more cunning and more manipulative than any he has encountered before. In 2007, aged just 13, Paris, a highly intelligent boy with a near genius level IQ, stabbed to death his 4-year old sister, Ella. Filmed in a multi-camera style, Piers burrows into the psychology of this dangerous individual and searches for answers to questions that have remained a mystery for 12 years. The interview is watched simultaneously by Paris' mother and a team of criminologists as they react 'live' to what they are seeing, to gain expert insight and genuine emotion throughout the film.

An intense, dramatic interview with a psychopathic near-genius and a story that will leave any parent wondering what they would do in the same situation, Psychopath marks a huge step forward in Piers' exploration of the criminal mind in America

INTERVIEW WITH A KLLER

In 2019, 21-year-old Brandon Clark murdered on off girlfriend 17-year-old Bianca Devins after an argument. Brandon live streamed the vicious murder and posted images of Bianca's corpse on the internet. The content went viral and was shared widely throughout multiple social media platforms.

Clark pled guilty to the murder of Devins and has since remained silent about why he committed the murder and why he posted the gratuitous and vile images online. British award winning presenter Yinka Bokinni travels to Attica prison in New York State where Clark is serving out his life sentence to interview him in an attempt to understand how and why this violent tragedy took place. This is the first time Clark has spoken about his crime on camera.

CAR CRASH: WHO'S LYING?

A young man is killed in a devastating crash. At first it looks like yet another tragic accident, but as the police investigation gets underway, a dark mystery emerges: Who was the driver? Who were the victims? Who's lying? A compelling single narrative documentary that tells the story of an unlikely group of friends in a close-knit community in Hampshire, who find themselves at the centre of an intense police investigation. Emotional interviews from the family members and friends of the gravely injured teens highlight what they believe happened that night, but the only ones who know the true story are those who were in the car. As their stories change, conflicting testimonies emerge and rumours spread amongst the community – it's down to the police to unpick the mystery of what really went on that night. With the critical hard evidence and real truths finally eked out, almost a year to the day after the crash, the truth is finally revealed.

THE TOOLBOX MURDERS

The Toolbox Murders is a haunting two-part true crime docuseries that unravels one of Queensland's most disturbing double homicides.

Set in suburban Logan, the series traces the brutal killings of Cory Breton and Iuliana Triscaru, lured to a drug den by a violent gang led by Stou Daniels. Cory, wrongly suspected of being a police informant, and Iuliana, an innocent bystander, are subjected to horrific torture before being locked inside a metal toolbox and drowned in Scrubby Creek. As their families search for answers, police begin to uncover a crime driven by paranoia, gang loyalty and meth-fuelled violence.

Episode two examines the complex legal aftermath, where plea deals, appeals and overturned convictions leave justice painfully unresolved. Through interviews, courtroom drama and psychological insight, the series explores how gang culture, fractured relationships and systemic failures collided in a case that shocked a nation.

THE BYRON BAY MURDERS

Byron Bay Murders is a gripping true-crime documentary series investigating the mystery of 67 missing and murdered young women along Australia's east coast, from Newcastle to Byron Bay.

Spanning decades, the cases share striking similarities and centre on girls and young women, many aged just 14 to 20, who vanished without explanation. Led by Member of Parliament Jeremy Buckingham, whose personal loss drives his pursuit of justice, the series uncovers a pattern of disappearances long dismissed or ignored.

Through powerful testimony from families who have waited decades for answers, the series exposes systemic police failures and institutional indifference. As new evidence surfaces including potential links to associates of serial killer Ivan Milat, and advances in DNA technology reopen old cases, a disturbing question emerges: was Milat the only predator, or have others escaped detection for years?

More than an investigation, Byron Bay Murders is a confronting examination of Australia's darkest secrets and a demand for long-overdue justice.

THE MEGA BROTHEL

This film takes audiences inside one of the biggest brothels in Europe, the Paradise mega-brothel chain in Germany, to explore what life is like for girls, clients and management in a country with some of the most liberal prostitution laws in the world. We meet the prostitutes, as they arrive from around Europe to work in Paradise. Few maintain any meaningful relationships outside their work. But, earning €1000 a day, for many, this is a trade-off worth making. For young men in Stuttgart, a visit to the club has become a right of passage. Divorced Peter pays €7000 a year for unlimited access to the club. Feminists claim that because the club also offers saunas, Turkish baths and massage, Paradise is normalising prostitution, which sets a dangerous precedent.

THE LITTLE PARIS KITCHEN: COOKING WITH RACHEL KHOO

Cook and food writer Rachel Khoo demonstrates her imaginative flair for the cuisine of Paris. From her tiny Parisian kitchen, Rachel proves that simple cooking can produce sensational results.

Rachel's passion for food took her to the French capital some years ago, where she trained at Le Cordon Bleu. She went on to open her own restaurant – the smallest in the city, with just two covers – in her Belleville flat, and it went down a storm with the notoriously tough French critics.

Over six episodes, Rachel demonstrates her contemporary approach to classic French dishes, from light snacks to familiar favourites. But she also explores the less familiar food landscape of this cosmopolitan capital, taking us to the city's most inspirational food markets and restaurants and revealing fresh and vibrant influences such as North African and Vietnamese. It provides for a fresh, surprising and mouthwatering insight into the food and the city itself.

WIN IT COOK IT

The only food show on television where the contestants have to win their ingredients before they can cook with them. Two pairs of contestants answer questions to try and win the best ingredients while aiming to avoid some not so great ones. Then, they must turn them into what they hope will be a prize winning dish, as judged by host, celebrity chef Simon Rimmer, and a different well-known guest judge each week. But the best ingredients don't always guarantee victory. Can they use their initiative and imagination to turn spam, sauerkraut and salted popcorn into a dish fit to dine on? Or will the quality of the luxury ingredients win the judges over? The quickest thinking and most inventive chefs will walk away with the luxury prize.

FISH! A JAPANESE OBSESSION

Charles Rangeley Wilson, author, journalist and BBC Two's Accidental Angler, travels to Japan to explore the Japanese people's passionate relationship to fish. Of all the island nations on Earth, there is, perhaps, none quite so obsessed by fish as Japan. Whether for food or entertainment, fish are at the very core of Japanese identity. From their reverential love of jewel-like koi to the seemingly barbaric world of scientific whaling via the submarine ballet of the drive hunt, there are few corners of Japanese culture that have not been shaped by reference to fish. Trying to comprehend this 'alien' culture, Charles embarks on a six-week odyssey through Japan, determined to use his love of fish and fishing as the common point of interest between himself and those he meets along the way. Since he loves fish possibly even more than the Japanese, they must have plenty in common...

WHITES ONLY: ADE'S EXTREMIST ADVENTURE

Journalist and presenter Ade Adepitan travels to South Africa to investigate Orania, a controversial rural town that admits only Afrikaners, a white ethnic group descended from European colonisers.

Founded in the 1990s as a so-called "safe haven", Orania claims to be a cultural project rather than a racist enclave, despite apartheid-era symbols and the exclusion of Black South Africans.

Ade confronts residents with difficult questions: where does cultural preservation end and racism begin, should extreme communities be understood, and who gets to decide where the line is drawn?

TAN FRANCE: BEAUTY AND THE BLEACH

Tan France (Queer Eye) is on a mission to take down the world's most shocking beauty trend, and for him, it's personal. In this revealing documentary Tan explores issues around skin tone and colourism in society, as well as the fashion, entertainment and beauty industries.

He also explores his own personal issues with the phenomenon. When he was ten, he did something he's regretted his whole life: he stole some skin lightening cream, and began to bleach his own skin. Skin lightening is not unique to the South Asian community - the trend exists in black, Asian and Middle Eastern communities. It stretches to all four corners of the globe, where light and white skin are in vogue, and dark is seen as undesirable. Whether they're rich or poor, young or old, male or female, people are going to extreme lengths to chase the white beauty ideal.

Now, Tan is on a journey to discover why 'shade shame' is reigning supreme across the world. As people chase white beauty at all costs, Tan is here to say: black and brown are beautiful too, and it's time for everyone to take pride in their skin tone.

CAN EATING INSECTS SAVE THE WORLD?

Presenter and food writer Stefan Gates immerses himself in the extraordinary world of hardcore insect eating in a bid to conquer his lingering revulsion of bugs and discover if they really could save the planet. With 40 tonnes of insects to every human, perhaps insects could offer a real solution to the global food crisis - where billions go hungry every day whilst the meat consumption of the rich draws vast amounts of grain out of the global food chain.

Stefan's on a mission to meet the people in Thailand and Cambodia that hunt, eat and sell edible insects for a living. But nothing quite prepares him for bug farming on this terrifying scale, from stalking grasshoppers at night to catching fiercely biting ants. And it's not just insects on the menu. Stefan also goes hunting for the hairiest, scariest spider on the planet - the tarantula. Stefan asks if the solution is for everyone - the British included - to start eating insects too.

IN SEARCH OF WABI SABI WITH MARCEL THEROUX

British novelist Marcel Theroux is fascinated by Wabi Sabi, a theory of Japanese aesthetics in which imperfection and transience are the touchstones of beauty. The Japanese say that, if you can understand Wabi Sabi, you will understand Japan and the Japanese - yet they have immense difficulty in explaining the concept themselves. In this film, Marcel travels across Japan, from Tokyo to Kyoto and then on to the mountains of Fukui, trying to unravel the meaning of this baffling concept that is at the heart of what makes the Japanese tick. It's a journey that starts under the bright neon lights and craziness of Tokyo and ends in an austere Zen Temple in the snowy foothills of Japan's Eastern mountains. The film, and Marcel's journey, is challenging, funny and ultimately moving.

LUCY THE HUMAN CHIMP

Janis Carter tells on film for the first time the astonishing, dramatic story of her life with Lucy, a chimp raised as a human, then sent to live in the wild. Lucy's life among humans began when she was taken at two days old from her chimp mother, to be raised by Clinical Psychologist Maurice Temerlin and his wife Jane, as their own daughter. She ate with the family, read magazines, learned sign language and went fishing with her father before sleeping in a bed at night. After 12 years of the comfortable suburban life, Lucy became too strong and presented a physical threat to visitors to the family home. She had to be confined in a cage. It was then that she met Janis, who as a graduate student was employed to help clean her cage. Soon Janis and Lucy's friendship blossomed. In 1977 the Temerlins decided to send Lucy to The Gambia, Africa, in the hope she might adapt to a new life among her own species in a wild chimp sanctuary. Janis went along to help get Lucy settled in, planning to be there for three weeks. She ended up living with Lucy on a jungle island for eight years.

Told with rare emotional intensity, Janis and Lucy is a gripping story that raises universal questions about what divides human from animal, and right from wrong.

WHALE HUNTERS: AN UNTOLD HISTORY

In the twentieth century, whaling ships killed 1.5 million whales in Antarctica, bringing the biggest creatures that have ever lived to the brink of extinction. Whalers from Europe led the rush south and were still whaling into the 1960s. Historian Adam Nicolson takes a once-in-a-lifetime chance to explore the world's biggest whaling station, on the Antarctic island of South Georgia, built and operated by a British company, and the hub of the whaling industry until just fifty years ago. This unique film delves deep into a story of our shared past that was on its way to being airbrushed out of history altogether, and reveals the epic tussle between businessmen, scientists and politicians that took the whales to the brink of total destruction.

MANHUNTING WITH MY MUM

AJ Odudu, presenter, Club DJ and radio host is about to turn 30 and is shocked to find herself without a man. Despite using dating apps, social media, set ups and every other means to find Mr Right, she remains resolutely single. Her mum, Florence, is unimpressed with online dating and now AJ is desperate enough to start thinking outside the box. Florence, one of 24, moved to Britain from Nigeria in 1974 to have an arranged marriage. She and AJ's dad settled down together in Blackburn and went on to have 8 children. Florence and her brothers back in Nigeria have a ready-made list of men who they believe are ideal husband material for AJ. All vetted by the family, they're now ready to be rolled out. Florence is convinced this is the best way to find AJ a good, reliable and loving man. In Nigeria AJ will date each of her potential husbands, and be expected to learn (nearly) all the duties of a Nigerian wife.

THE ORCHID HUNTER

When Tom Hart-Dyke was looking for orchids in South America he was kidnapped by Colombian guerrillas. Nine months captivity in the jungle gave Tom plenty of experience of tropical orchids and now he's determined to find a new species of orchid to name after his inspirational grandmother, and is convinced that Irian Jaya offers the best chance. It's part of Papua New Guinea, the second largest island in the world, and only 5% of it has ever been explored by botanists. Most scientists are reluctant to work there because of the ever-present threat of kidnapping and the extremely hostile working environment, inhabited by groups of cannibals and head-hunters. However, Tom is not a botanist who scares easily. Journeying into the heart of the unexplored areas of one of the world's most botanically diverse countries, it is anybody's guess just who or what he will find there...

FIRST COMMUNION

BIG Hair, BIG Dress, BIG Parties! But when the celebration is over, will they keep the faith?

With unique access to Holy Communion season, this specialist doc goes behind the glitz and glamour of the occasion to meet the families for their child's big day.

Every year thousands of 6 and 7 year olds across the UK are welcomed into the Catholic church - it's a huge moment for them. The celebrations around the service get bigger and more elaborate every year with £1000 dresses, big family parties, tanning salons, limos and fake nails all the order of the day - but is this at the expense of the religious meaning?

This film brings privileged access to a fascinating, unseen world, as we follow the emotional rollercoaster of Holy Communion Season from October to July through the eyes and experience of the children themselves. Months of hard work go into preparing the children to commit to the Catholic Faith and receive the Eucharist for the first time.

HELLO DOLLIES

Charming, eccentric Caroline is the queen of the doll's house world. Every one of her 44 dolls houses has a story within it, from Floozy the showgirl, with her tattered negligee and mirrored ceiling, to an exquisite replica of Caroline's childhood home in Versailles. For her, a doll's house has a life of its own. Mandy's got a £300 a month miniatures habit. Brought up in a council house in Liverpool where space was tight and toys a luxury, she now spends her cash creating in miniature the grand homes and lifestyles she can't have in real life. But where's she going to put her latest project, a 4 floor mansion that towers over her 4ft 8' height? This film delves deep into the little known world of adult doll's house enthusiasts, exploring the attraction of creating miniature worlds through the stories of some very eccentric collectors.

BEAST OF THE AMAZON

The last Ground Sloth became extinct over 10,000 years ago. Now one man is risking his reputation and his livelihood to prove that the beast still exists, deep in the jungles of the Amazon. David Oren, Head of Natural History at the Goeldi Museum in Brazil, has interviewed scores of people who all claim to have seen a large bear-like animal with a monkey face. But he needs hard evidence in order to convince the sceptical scientific world. Beast Of The Amazon follows him as he journeys to the Nevada desert, the banks of the Tapajos and into the heart of the rainforest, accompanied by arch sceptic and palaeontologist Greg MacDonald. Astoundingly, on the last day of the expedition, Oren chances upon a vital piece of evidence.

JUNGLE TRIP: IN THE SHADOW OF THE SHAMAN

What begins as a plant hunt in the Peruvian jungle, turns into a terrifying, mind-altering journey for amateur ethnobotanist Piers Gibbon. His quest is to sample the violently hallucinogenic ayahuasca brew – which Amazonian shamans drink so that they can enter the spirit world and talk to the plants – and discover its recipe. But as he travels deeper into the jungle, it becomes apparent that Piers' notion of plant collecting is hopelessly out-dated. After injecting an uncontrollable dose of frog poison Piers finds a shaman who is prepared to reveal his supernatural secrets. But he must prove his commitment – by spending several nights on his own drinking the ayahuasca brew. The final initiation ceremony demands that Piers swallow some of the shaman's phlegm. How far is he prepared to go in pursuit of knowledge and experience, and will he ever find his way back again?

CRISTIANO RONALDO MEETS PIERS MORGAN

Piers meets the biggest sports star in the world, in Turin, Italy. Ronaldo has over 180 million Instagram followers, plays for the Italian champions Juventus and by many is thought to be the greatest footballer of all time. However, his private life makes the front pages as often as his incredible talent makes the sports pages. Piers talks to Ronaldo about his life from his most humble upbringing in Madeira and he breaks down when Piers shows him an unseen clip of his deceased father. He discusses his notorious rivalry with Lionel Messi, his incredible drive and determination to still be the best at 34 years old, fatherhood, family and fame. This is the first time Ronaldo has ever done a major sit-down interview of this kind and is an opportunity for the world to really get to know who Cristiano Ronaldo really is behind the headlines – with an interviewer who never pulls his punches.
